A camel is a horse designed by committee consensus. All sorts of hidden factories and unauthentic behaviors throw a company off course and cloud performance – hiding what is not happening.

Element Yu's Rapid Information Assessment (RIA) methods orient decision-makers to basic truths about their operation: a need to be well-informed, maintaining situational awareness, and preparing management teams to take on decisions that involve larger stakes. Seldom does a lack of collected information exist – only a lack of appreciation of what to do with the information — and how to ply it into advantage.

Business processes must combine action-taking with decision-making – which requires an integrated continuum of consistent information. Element Yu's four-point approach involving risk, value, intent, and capability delivers visibility in areas necessary to sustaining organizational success.

Element Yu aids business organizations with integrating their IT assets, improving operational efficiency, and enhancing speed to market capability. Element Yu offers consulting services in the following areas,

- Rapid Information Assessment (RIA) with organizational information flow mapping
- Decision making and execution analysis
- IT Business process analysis geared towards improved resiliency, workflow, efficiency, and defect reduction
- Strategic and operational IT planning
- Dashboard development and intelligence services
